SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

The fugitive's route of travel is indicated at ENCLOSURE 1. He will travel west through the Yellowstone National Park and into Montana. He will then travel north for a short distance and double back in an easterly direction in the state of Montana above the Wyoming border towards his ultimate (near term) destination of Biddle, Montana.

The fugitive correctly suspects that he has been sighted. He intends to pursue his route of travel on foot utilizing camp grounds and even camping out in the wild. He is determined to avoid establishing a trail of activity (evidence of signature, receipt, car rentals hotel/motel rentals).

Within the framework of his current and projected plans, the fugitive is highly susceptible to being apprehended via a helicopter search.

Noted that the fugitive's route of march will eventually bring him through the Big Horn, an Indian Crow Reservation.
